RICHARD MILLIKEN AND SON, in presenting their Catalogue to the Public, beg respectfully to remark, that the greater portion of the MODERN BOOKS contained in it, are NEW AND UNOPENED ; a great number, (perhaps the largest, that has ever been laid before the public,) are in appropriate Library, or more splendid, bindings ; and all of them in the most perfect condition. This observation may be deemed necessary, because the REDUCED PRICES at which they are offered, although not pointedly distinguished from those at which they were respectively published, (a method adopted in most modern Catalogues, yet serving but in few instances as a guide to their present value) will, notwithstanding, be found to be low indeed.

Perhaps no age has been more productive of light reading, and of works of fiction, than the present. Much of this class, loses, in a great measure, its interest with its novelty, and, becomes out of fashion. —A large assemblage of this description of works, not here particularized, R. Milliken and Son now offer at ONE HALF the publication prices.

They beg further to observe that, independently of the Scientific and Classical divisions of this Catalogue, they are always extensively supplied with the most approved Elementary Works used in Schools.

In ordering any article from this Catalogue it will be necessary, besides giving the number, to specify the name of the work and its price;—the latter, in particular, becomes requisite, since under the same number, it will in very many instances be found, that two or more copies or editions of the same work are described.

LAW BOOKS.—They beg to refer to their general Catalogue of Books of this Class, in which will be found every work connected with the jurisprudence of these countries, and including a complete series of the OLD REPORTERS; of these, many are so scarce as to be with great difficulty met with. Added to their Establishment, are adapted to the use of the Profession generally. The former is extensive, and comprises all the most useful works in this department:—the latter are furnished with the English and Irish Daily and Evening Papers, Reviews, Magazines, Pamphlets, &c.

Terms of Subscription, Two Guineas annually.

The undoubted autograph of the author, and originally intended by him for a re-publication of the work. In the title of this perfectly unique copy appears the following MS. note :

“ N. B. This manuscript was not that from which my history was “ printed, but from an abridgement of this, as far as to page 483,
“ many parts of this being thrown into the notes, particularly the “ chapter on Counties Palatine, p. 120, &c. My chief reason for “ abridging this was want of encouragement to print it entire.
“ O Tempora O mores.

This forms with the preceding article, the most perfect and uniform body of Greek eloquence ever brought together, and illustrated by all the labours of ancient and modern criticism. The circumstances under which these works come before the public at prices so little proportioned to the cost of their production, may be traced to the unfortunate commercial derangement of the beginning of 1826; and the spirited individual who projected such an extensive and laborious undertaking, must, in order to repay himself a moderate profit on the immense sum he sunk in it, have published these works at prices at least one third beyond what are here named.

In this republication of the Lexicon of Facciolati the Editor has rendered the Italian significations of the former edition into English, and has introduced in an appendix, with other useful matter, Tursellinus de Particulis, Gesner's Etymological Index, and Gerardi Siglarium Romanum. "This latter," says Dr. Clarke, "will be justly esteemed a precious treasure by the students of Roman antiquities—it is to them exactly what a dictionary is to the learner of a language." Circumstances of a very peculiar nature attending its publication have brought this edition of Facciolati before the public at a price not within one-third of what it should have been sold at, to cover the expense of its production, and afford even a moderate profit on the immense capital sunk in it.

A story of Irish manners, the simplicity, purity, and eloquence of language of which are highly striking. Distinguished by a minuteness of observation and a close knowledge of the female heart, it seems the work of a female: but whether or not, it is written with a power which practice and encouragement might raise to no trivial distinction. Pathos and sweetness of description, the mastery of the human heart, are high attributes—and those are in the mind that produced this unostentatious labour.—Blackwood's Mag.

- 6086 CEREMONIAL OF THE CORONATION of His Most Sacred Majesty KING GEORGE THE FOURTH, in the Abbey of St. Peter's Westminster; including whole length PORTRAITS in regular procession of the Archbishops, and Bishops, the Peers, and the other great Personages who officially assisted at that august ceremony, finished in the most exquisite style of art, and with the utmost splendor of colouring. The description of the ceremony as well as the titles of the several attendants on it, are splendidly printed IN LETTERS OF GOLD; the title to the work is enclosed in the collar of the Order of the Garter, with the Jewel appended, and is surmounted by the Imperial Crown, THE WHOLE IN GOLD. The frontispiece, representing the great altar of Westminster Abbey on which appears the Regalia of England, is richly illuminated in gold and colours; and the whole is perhaps the most gorgeous specimen of British art that has ever been presented to the public. It is in size what is called elephant folio, IN SEVEN PARTS, or divisions, 44*l.* 2*s.* 1829
- 6087 MAGNA CARTA REGIS JOHANNIS, XV. DIE JUNII, A. D. MCCXV, accedit CONVENTIO INTER REGEM JOHANNEM ET BARONES. It is sumptuously printed in letters of gold, on sheets of vellum of the purest white and most exquisite texture. Each page is bordered with beautifully illuminated drawings, some of which represent the armorial ensigns of the Barons, various orders of Knighthood, &c. and others consist of fanciful decorations of the finest grotesque, exquisitely finished, and taken from specimens in the ancient MSS. in the British Museum. In addition to the splendid peculiarities above named, this work is enriched with a most beautiful drawing in water colours, of his present MAJESTY, another of KING JOHN, each 12 inches by 15; and one representing the latter MONARCH in the act of signing the Charter, a copy from the great stained glass window in Arundel Castle; also a vignette view of Runnemede, &c. The dedication (to his present Majesty) is surrounded with the insignia of the whole of his English and Foreign orders richly emblazoned. Its size is what is called Atlas Folio; the binding purple morocco, finished in the most superb and costly manner, and lined with watered silk; the exterior and interior being richly ornamented with the greatest taste, in the gothic style, with a profusion of gold tooling, after designs taken purposely for this work from parts of Henry VIIIth's Chapel.
